

Delegation Of Authority May Be Achilles Heel Of Gold Clause Defense

WASHINGTON — Government attorneys admit privately that there is one vulnerable point in their defense of the constitutionality of the gold clause.

This is the fact that Congress delegated to the President the power to manipulate the value of the dollar.

The authority of Congress to make changes in the monetary unit, they assert is beyond question. The Constitution expressly states that Congress shall have the power to "coin money and regulate the value thereof."

But whether it has the right to turn that power over to another branch of the Government is something else again.

The Administration contends that it has, but its legal justifiers concede privately that this point is the Achilles heel of their case.

Congress Talks

Visitors to the Capitol are thronging the Senate galleries these days to see the big show, but many turn away bewildered and disappointed.

A-d here are typical comments showing why:

"Seemed like they were tending to their own business but not to the speaker." "I've heard the name of Representatives, and I expected to hear more eloquence in the senate department, but I didn't." "I didn't listen much. Huey Long was walking all around the floor and I was watching him."

"Reminds me of what we used to do back in school days—anything but listen to the teacher."

"I was there ten minutes and I didn't hear Huey Long." "A lot of kibitzing." "I guess they haven't got started yet."

"I wonder how they make our laws if they don't pay more attention than that."

Only A Congressman

When New Mexico's sole Congressman came to Washington he got a welcome that was a surprise to him. He registered at the Hotel Washington, went up to his room, disrobed and got into the tub for a bath.

A knock came at the door. It was a bell-hop offering to take the gentleman's clothes to be pressed. Soon another knock. A news photographer. Presently two more arrivals—newsmen asking for an interview.

In desperation the Congressman picked up the telephone.

"Look here, Mr. Manager, I want to be let alone. What's the reason for all this disturbance, anyhow?"

Then the explanation came.

"Sorry, Mr. Dempsey. I've just discovered it myself. You see, the name 'Jack Dempsey' is a bit misleading, and when the boys saw it on the register, they thought it was the Jack Dempsey."

"No, no, I'm only a Congressman," was the reply.

Warpath

Secretary George H. Dern is on the warpath.

The stolid War Department executive is a slow starter. But when his dander is aroused he is a dogged fighter.

And his ire has been touched to the quick.

The reason is some secret inner Administration sniping at his protégé, Senior Assistant Attorney General Harold M. Stephens.

FARMERS GET MORE CHECKS IN CROP PLAN

Second Distribution Of Corn-Hog Money Received; Totals $107,988

ARRANGE MEETINGS

Expenses Of Administering Program Low Here

Purses of Pickaway-co farmers will be replenished this week when the second checks received under the government's corn-hog reduction plan are distributed. F. K. Blair, county agricultural agent, today announced a series of meetings beginning Thursday at which time the checks will be issued to the contract signers.

The checks received at the farm bureau office Tuesday afternoon total $107,988 on 866 contracts. There are still 419 checks to come expecting to boost the total to $150,000.

In the earlier distribution, the first payment, Pickaway-co contract signers received approximately $230,000.

EXPENSE COST LOW

The amount of money required for administration expenses was exceedingly low in Pickaway as compared to some other counties. Administration of the corn program cost three-fourths of a cent per bushel and it cost about 12 cents per hog to administer that program.

Critics of the AAA program said the corn administration would cost about half of the total amount of money due and that the hog program would cost $1 per hog. Efficient and careful management resulted in the low administration expense.

The meetings will be held as follows:

THURSDAY

District 9, 9:30-11 a. m. Hill Grain Co.; Jackson, 9:11 a. m., school building; Muhlenberg, 7:30-9:30 p. m., school building; Pickaway, 1:30-4 p. m., school building; Salt Creek, 9:30-11 a. m., school building; Scioto, 1:30-4 p. m., school building; Walnut, 7:30-9:30 p. m., school building; Washington, 7:30-9:30 p. m., school building.

FRIDAY

Deer Creek, 1:30-4 p. m., school building; Monroe, 9:30-11 a. m., township house; Perry, 7:30-9:30 p. m., school building.

SATURDAY

Circleville-twp, 9-11 a. m., farm bureau office.

The county's check for $26,384 from the distribution of auto license tag money was received at the auditor's office Tuesday morning. Circleville's share of the $26,384 amount will be $2,500.

The county fund will be augmented $17,959 plus $5,000 from the 5 per cent equalization fund.

Shares the various villages will receive total:

Ashville, $425; Commercial Point, $75; New Holland, $175; South Bloomfield, $50; Tarlton, $50 and Williamsport, $150.

Approximately six and one-half millions of dollars were distributed to Ohio counties in this first general distribution which exceeded the initial disbursement of 1934 by almost one million dollars.

Seventy-two per cent of license fees collected in the county, and also the statutory five per cent equalization fund of $5,000 were returned to the county.

Farm Income Climbs

COLUMBUS, Jan. 23 — Ohio farmers received a total cash income from the sale of farm products in 1934 of approximately 203 million dollars, it was estimated today by F. L. Morison of the department of rural economics at Ohio State University here.

The income, which includes rental and benefit payments from the AAA, is an increase of about 22 per cent over the income for 1933, and, according to Morison, is the best income Ohio farmers have had since 1930.

SEVERE COLD WAVE ON WAY

Central States to Suffer Intense Weather! Southern Area Flooded

CHICAGO, Jan. 23—Another severe cold wave, with sub-zero temperatures promised by tonight, was boring into the frigid middle west today from the Canadian plains.

Following only a brief respite of a few hours, in which the temperature rose to 18 above here, the mercury began a steady drop toward the zero mark early today. Tonight Chicago can expect a reading of 10 below, Forecaster W. P. Day warned.

The abnormal cold, far more severe than the preceding frigid wave, will envelop Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, Michigan, Missouri, Iowa, Nebraska and Kansas, the weather bureau said.

Four persons died from the cold here in the last 36 hours as the temperature fell to three below. At Duluth, Minn., last night the temperature dropped to 24 below; (Continued On Page Six)

FOUR ESCAPED YOUTHS CAUGHT

Four youths who escaped the boys' industrial school at Lancaster last Sunday were found hiding in a straw stack near the city limits Wednesday morning by Officers McCrady and Fitzpatrick.

The boys were immediately returned to the industrial school.

They had been sleeping out since Sunday and one of them was suffering from frozen feet. He and his companions had spent part of one night in a school house between here and Lancaster. He took off his shoe and placed them on a stove. The shoes burned and he was forced to walk in the snow in his bare feet. B. I. S. officials, who came here after the youths, said they would try to get the youth to the hospital before his feet thawed.

Local officers did not learn the boys' names although all were said to have been "second timers" at the institution.

FIVE ROB MAIL

FALL RIVER, Mass., Jan. 23—Five armed bandits today held up a United States mail truck, kidnapped the driver, Herbert Reid, drove the truck to an isolated spot and then escaped in an automobile with two sacks of registered mail.

Reid was bound, thrown into the rear of the mail truck and covered with a sack. He was enroute from Fall River depot to the post office when the men leaped aboard the truck near French's hill.

Authorities were unable to ascertain exactly how much money and other valuables were included in the stolen sacks.

ADKINS HEARS CRITES ACTION FOR RECEIVER

Bitter Court Fight Predicted With Valuable Property Involved

TRY CASE TO COURT

Plaintiff Alleges Fraud In Property Transfer

What may become one of the most bitterly fought court cases in recent Pickaway-co history was started in Judge J. W. Adkins' court Wednesday. It includes actions brought by Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Crites against Crites, Inc., a company formed by Mr. Crites' principal creditors, the Huntington National bank, Columbus; the Continental Can Co., Chicago, and the First National bank, St. Louis.

Mr. and Mrs. Crites, who filed separate actions, ask a receiver appointed to handle the assets of canning plants at Ashville, New Holland, Jeffersonville, O., and Chrisman, Ill., and of farm land totalling about 1,000 acres. In opening statements to the court Wednesday morning the plaintiffs' attorneys brought out that the canning companies are deteriorating in value.

FRAUD IS CHARGED

The Criteses charge fraud and collusion in the transactions which resulted in Crites deeding land and other property to Crites, Inc. J. C. Harlor, Columbus attorney and president of Crites, Inc., was the first witness called to testify during the morning session. Richard Simkins, attorney with Smith W. Bennett for Mrs. Crites, questioned Harlor concerning transactions which led to Mr. Crites deeding his properties.

Simkins delved considerably on the allegation that Mr. Crites was "inveigled" into deeding over his property even after involuntary bankruptcy proceedings had been started by the three principal creditors. Simkins maintained Crites was not informed of the bankruptcy proceedings even though the meeting at which time he signed the deeds was held after the action was started. Mr. Harlor maintained Mr. Crites had been told of the court action.

The court room resembled a bar association meeting today with four out of town attorneys and Weldon and Weldon seated at the Crites, Inc. table with Simkins, Bennett and Wilson & Rector at the Crites table. The receivership hearing is not before a jury but before the court alone.

C. E. DICK ELECTED BY COUNTY BOARD

C. Everett Dick, Monroe-twp., has been elected president of the county board of education succeeding Wayne Hoover, Jackson-twp. Mr. Dick has been acting as vice president.

A. J. Dunkel, Circleville-twp., was named vice president.

Other members are Bernard W. Young, Pickaway-twp., and J. F. Willis, Perry-twp.

George D. McDowell, county superintendent, is clerk of the board by virtue of his office.

In Alienation Suit

Anne Cannon Reynolds Smith, suit for alienation of affections, brought in Concord, N. C., by F. Brandon Smith, Jr., of Charlotte, N. C., against J. F. Cannon, millionaire towel manufacturer, may help iron out the tangled litigation over disposition of the $500,000 estate of the late Zachary Smith Reynolds. Smith seeks $250,000 for alleged alienation of the affections of his divorced wife, Anne Cannon Reynolds Smith, above. Successful prosecution would tend to prove legality of Anne's divorce from young Reynolds, and his subsequent marriage to Libby Holman.

STATE READY FOR NEW TAX

Only Few Details to be Worked Out; State to Provide Treasurers' Aid

COLUMBUS, Jan. 23—Warning that "we're going to be severe" in enforcing the law, Quincy A. Davis, chairman of the state tax commission, announced today that the machinery is completed for the start of collections of Ohio's new sales tax next Monday.

A few details remain to be ironed out yet, but Davis said the important cogs have been set in the tax collection machine and will begin operating full speed when the three per cent tax is clamped over the state at 12:01 a. m. Monday.

Action was expected to be hurried today in the state house of representatives on a bill, passed by the senate yesterday, giving county treasurers and their tax collecting agents increased fees for the handling of sales tax coupons.

The bill, introduced by Senator W. H. Hermer (D) of Norwalk, provides that county treasurers and special agents selling sales tax stamps shall receive one per cent of the receipts. In the original sales tax measure, the treasurers are authorized to receive one-tenth of one per cent, while no provision was made for special agents.

THREE RELEASED IN HICKEY CASE

Convinced that William Hickey, W. Main-st., fell and injured his head and was not struck as they first believed, police have released three men they held as witnesses. They were Oyer Green, 24, Gerald Davis, 21, and Charles Blacksten, 42.

Prosecutor Ray W. Davis and Officer William McCrady questioned all three Tuesday before releasing them.

Hickey, however, is suffering from a fractured skull. An x-ray taken at the hospital Tuesday disclosed this fact.

Cruel Mother Defies Court; Burns Child

BAYONNE, N. J., Jan. 23— "I did it—and I'll do it again!" This was the defiant response today of Marian Murray Crampton, 30, to imposition of a 90-day penitentiary term for torturing her nine-year-old daughter, Marian, whose hand was placed on a hot stove and whose legs bore three livid welts from a heated iron, stood before him.

The mother retorted: "I did it and I'll do it again. What are you going to do about it?"

LEGISLATOR ON 5 COMMITTEES

Finance, Schools, Waterways, Buildings and Parks—Public Works Hunsicker Job

Clark Hunsicker, W. Union-st., Pickaway-co's representative in the general assembly, has been placed on five committees, several of which are important.

He will serve on finance, schools, buildings, parks and public works, and waterways.

His appointment was announced today by J. Freer Bittinger, of Ashland, speaker of the house.

AID TO CONSERVANCY

The finance, schools and waterways appointments are considered of importance since some of the most important problems of the legislature will be taken up in these three committees. Finance and schools are always considered important, while the proposed Scioto-Sandusky conservancy program will have a decided effect on Pickaway-co and Mr. Hunsicker's appointment to that committee should prove of much benefit to the program.

Appointment of Mr. Hunsicker on the finance committee is regarded as a major step for a "freshman" in the house. It is not often that a first term legislator can get on this committee.

Republicans have been given an edge over Democrats in the various chairmanships. One more chairmanship was handed to Republicans by Speaker Bittinger than to Democrats. It is believed his move was to appease some of the Republicans who were angered by the "bolting" of Representatives King and Deibel. P. E. Ward, Chardon Republican, was named chairman of the important taxation committee. Arthur Hamilton, of Lebanon, who was beaten for the speakership by Bittinger, and Myron Gessaman, Columbus G. O. P. leader, were named on the rules committee of which Bittinger himself will be chairman.

LICENSE TAG COST OF $3 IS FAVORED

COLUMBUS, Jan. 23—Passenger automobiles would go back on the personal property tax duplicate but the annual registration fee, now ranging from $10 to $25, according to horsepower, would be uniformly $3 on all cars under a bill Rep. John Lehmann (D) Fremont, said he would introduce today in the Ohio house of representative.

While he has not discussed the measure with Governor Davey, provisions of the Lehmann bill appeared to coincide with the executive's suggestion that cars be taxed according to value instead of on a horsepower basis.

Farmers using motor trucks exclusively for hauling their own products to benefit greatly under the Fremont legislator's proposal to tax them according to weight.

Investigator Told Toledoan Still Controlling Gang From Prison

COLUMBUS, Jan. 23—Pounding at a wedge opened at yesterday's initial session, Frazier Reams, chief investigator for Governor Martin L. Davey's investigation of conditions at Ohio Penitentiary, today pried further for revelations from the prison's red office ledger.

The ledger disclosed yesterday that Thomas "Yonnie" Licavoli, Toledo gang leader, has had many visitors since his admittance to the penitentiary last November 10—a fact which brought Reams to the assertion that "it is easy to see how Licavoli has been able to control his gangs in Toledo and Mansfield and other points in northwestern Ohio."

SIoux CITY, Ia., Jan. 23—Two bandits slugged Sol Rosenman, New York jewel salesman, robbed him of $125,000 in diamonds, and shot their way out of a police chase here today.

The hold-up men trailed Rosenman from a railroad station and accosted him as he was about to enter a hotel. They beat the jewel salesman over the head, snatched his case of gems, and fled in a fast car.

Police chased the bandits into a blind alley but they shot their way out of the trap and escaped.

BRUNO'S ALIBI DISCLOSED AS DEFENSE PLAN

Reilly To Move For Dismissal, Saying The State Fails To Prove Case

CITES THREE POINTS

To Call Thirty Witnesses; State Nearing Close

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Jan. 23—Counsel for Bruno Richard Hauptmann will move for dismissal of the indictment charging him with the murder of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., as soon as the state has finished its case against him.

Edward J. Reilly, the big, ruddy Brooklyn lawyer who heads the Bronx carpenter's battery of defense lawyers, said the motion will be made by Egbert Rosecrans, Blairstown attorney, just as soon as the state puts the finishing touches on its case—probably late today.

ARGUE THREE GROUNDS

"The motion will be argued on three grounds," Reilly said. "First: That murder has not been proved by the state. Dr. Charles A. Mitchell, Mercer-co medical examiner, who performed the autopsy, did not show that the blood clot found on the child's skull when the body was found, was due to an ante-mortem or post-mortem fracture. He did not show that the fracture was not inflicted by inspector Harry Walsh of the Jersey City police when he admittedly punctured the skull while moving the remains with a stick."

"Second: The state has not proved it has a corpus delicti. Yes, I knew the defense did not force an issue over whether the body found was that of the Lindbergh child, but the issue is there."

"Third: The state has failed utterly to place Hauptmann at the scene of the crime at the time the crime was committed."

If the motion for dismissal is denied, C. Lloyd Fisher, of Flemington, will deliver a brief opening address to the jury for the defense, Reilly said.

Then will come a parade of "about 30" defense witnesses.

THE INDUSTRIAL COMMISSION

AMONG the investigations scheduled by the present state administration, none will attract more state-wide interest and attention than the operation of the Ohio Workmen's Compensation act as administered by the state industrial commission. The report of the investigating committee appointed some months ago to look into the affairs of the commission is rather vague and, while it covers the period of years since the law has been in force, it does not tell us what is wrong with this particular branch of state government. Passing the buck from one administration to another seems to have been the policy of each succeeding administration, but this does not clear the situation, nor does it let the public know what is wrong or who is to blame.

This department of government is in reality a sacred trust, administered by the state. The millions of dollars it handles is not state money—it belongs to the industrial employees and employers. The state collects the premiums for state industrial insurance and pays out the money according to the claims filed—at least that is the theory under which it is supposed to operate.

The employers of labor throughout the state pay the required amounts covering each employee into the vast fund, but when it comes to getting money out of the fund with which to pay legitimate claims, that's a different story.

Complaints come from all sections of the state to the effect that it is almost impossible to get legitimate claims adjusted and paid within any reasonable length of time. Victims of industrial accidents take all the necessary steps toward collecting what is due them in compensation, and then await the pleasure of the commission administering the fund. It is often necessary to employ attorneys, doctors, experts in all lines, attend hearings, and spend more than the claim is worth in attempting to collect it. And in the meantime the claimant may be in actual want for the necessities of life.

This is a state of affairs that should not be permitted to exist. If a claim is legitimate, it should be paid without unnecessary delay. If illegitimate, the facts should be brought to light and punishment meted out to those who have had any part in attempting to chisel into the fund.

The law was passed for the benefit and protection of both employer and employee and it should function as such without unnecessary delays, political preference or interference.

ANCESTOR WORSHIP

MOST people today are interested only in making both ends meet, but even in these times there are persons spending money in goodly sums on one end—their family beginnings.

Curiosity, social climbing and vanity have made the building family trees a large and prosperous industry even now. The high price on the heads of ancestors is freely paid.

British genealogists prosper on the dollars of Americans with more money than family knowledge. Few people bother about their family trees until they arrive financially, when many go into the matter somewhat deeply, particularly in a financial way.

A genealogist writing his memoirs cites only one instance of a customer being elated over the discovery of blacksheep in his family. He had his family tree—gibbeted highwayman, sheep-stealer and all—illuminated on vellum.

Family trees cost as much as the genealogist can inveigle from his client. In fact of them is there as much comfort as in a cord of fireplace wood yet their cost runs up into the thousands of dollars.

Genealogy seems to be a futile science or industry, and yet such things keep money in circulation and make for prosperity.

Daughters are cheaper in one way. The cars they wreck while learning to drive belong to boy friends.

Home is a place where somebody else is in the bathroom. The punishment of a liar is that he loses reputation and can't hurt an enemy by telling the truth on him.

Little Sister

by MARGARET WIDDERMER

READ THIS FIRST:

Leila Madison, an orphan, has been trying to halt the elopement of her reckless young sister, Bet, with Addison Huntington, a romantic radical. Jerry Redmond, a newspaper reporter, has been aiding Leila because of his friendship for Addy's brother who was Jerry's college roommate. They are all at Leila's Westchester home where Addy and Jerry meet Aunt Minnie and her neighbor, Mrs. Johnston-Hedges, mother of Orton Johnston-Hedges, whom Leila expects to marry. They have come from Bet's New York apartment where Addy, disguised as a girl, narrowly escaped the police who sought him for questioning in connection with the whereabouts of an acquaintance named Jarecki, an alleged forger. Aunt Minnie tells Addy about the improvements and how the old residents of Fernwood Manor are trying to keep their bathing beach exclusive property. This shocks Addy's socialist philosophy. Jerry phones next day and arranges an outing with Leila. Meantime Orton drops in to see Leila. Orton hints at a formal proposal but Leila isn't as excited as she expected to be. The next day Jerry arrives for their outing and drives off with Leila. Leila finds herself enjoying her interlude.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 23

LEILA AND JERRY went out with their burdens, giggling shamelessly. They drove turn, about, till the roads had become twisted country roads, and the greenery Jerry had continued to insist on began to appear. He was very particular. Finally, somewhere near Ridgefield, they found the perfect picnic ground and ate; Jerry very particular about his hors d'oeuvre. They had completely forgotten paper napkins; fortunately there were newspapers in the car. Jerry never fussed. It suddenly came to Leila that this was perhaps the nearest quality in the human race; most of the people she knew did fuss. She said so.

"Why should I? If you can't get or find or take a thing, pass on to the next. That's the most labor-saving device I know."

They had reached the berries which were to be for dessert, along with the sponge cake and iced coffee. "Is that your creed?"

"Always more or less has been. Everybody's creed comes a cropper once in a while. Sooner or later you come to the place where you find it doesn't work. . . . I have a horrible feeling mine may be about to go back on me."

"As how?"

"I think I am about to discover something which I can't take—or pass on to something else from."

"Oh, don't be so earnest! We were having such a good time, 10 miles up in the air!"

"You've always had to be pretty earnest, haven't you, Leila? No time off for the normal idleness—too busy acting as keeper? . . . Do you know," he said, his voice changing from a note which had been very gentle, "this meal is like the crowning glory of the western menu: Square, 25; gorge, 30; regular gorge, 45. I would do anything in reason for you, Leila, but I cannot finish these sponge cakes. We bought exactly once and a half too much. One always does. You should have brought a dog. Haven't you a dog who is so hopeless as to prizes that it doesn't matter what he eats?"

"How did you know the name of my kennels?" she asked suddenly.

"I have that kind of memory. It's part of my job."

He was lying on his back on the smaller automobile rug, smoking, as relaxed as a cat. There wasn't anything she needed to say, or do, or be. She had the other rug; she was leaning back against a tree. The moon was going to overlap the sunset; it was sliding up the sky even now. He went on irrelevantly, "I was putting that money away—by a miracle, I had a solvent savings bank—for a trip to the interior of China. Everybody's nuts over Russian trips, but China's the real place. A book about China—gosh! Well, noble-hearted little Jerry, has saved his godchild from a term in jail at the expense of six months more of toll in the great caddy. . . . I suppose I do seem a romantic fool to you; there's nobody as completely chained down to your sort of life as a girl brought up on legends of vanished grandeur; the grandeur is handsomer even than it looks to the ones it hasn't quit on."

"What do you know about legends of vanished grandeur?" She was a little cross; every so often she was cross with Jerry. She'd started that way.

"Heard 'em," said Jerry placidly, with a discerning smile and a wriggle closer to her. "Sat at your Aunt Minnie's tea table. Hear 'em. Saw 'em. Ate 'em. Got complete picture, Leila dear. My mind automatically registered, the first five minutes, exactly the sort of cheap, but effective sob story—or feature or both—background for the whole thing. Ruling passion strong in Jerry. 'Good, good, child! . . . Which,' he added suddenly, sitting up and speaking rather crossly also, 'is the sort of low thing Fernwood Manor's more conservative group would never say.'"

"Do stop acting as if I were Mrs. Johnston-Hedges!"

"Well, said Jerry coolly, 'to do that is only to anticipate, isn't it?'"

It was the sort of point-blank question—calmly put, difficult to escape from—that only reporters can ask. Leila chose her exit. After all, she was not engaged to Orton yet. And . . . after all, here in the spring mood, with the end of the feeling of being somewhere in strange delightful space with a strange friend she had known forever . . . after all, the road down which she had been leisurely walking because it seemed the only road there was, the appropriate road, the excellent road, with the end of the road, this minute, as she smiled into Jerry's dark blue eyes that watched her quietly through little smoke rings, and she played with a braid she was making from grass and anemones, even a likelihood—the end she had been facing willingly, hopefully, for a year or so now.

She laughed. "Anticipate anything you like. But that particular anticipation is a little too much of a good thing even for anybody with your powers of romancing."

After she had said it, she felt like a liar. But after all, Orton had said nothing, actually, yet—and certainly she had never been given the chance to say an actual formal Yes or No herself. After all—her heart sprang hard against her side at the idea—she was free!

Jerry did not move, except to turn a little more on his side, in order to face her more directly. His eyes held hers steadily. For a moment there was a queer quietness, there in the little spring wood at sunset. Then his hand reached for hers and held it, detaching the flowers. He began to speak again, even more slowly and easily than before.

"I've talked a lot about me. Funny. I haven't done it before for a good long time. In my trade, you get out of the way of it. Going to talk about me some more, if you don't mind."

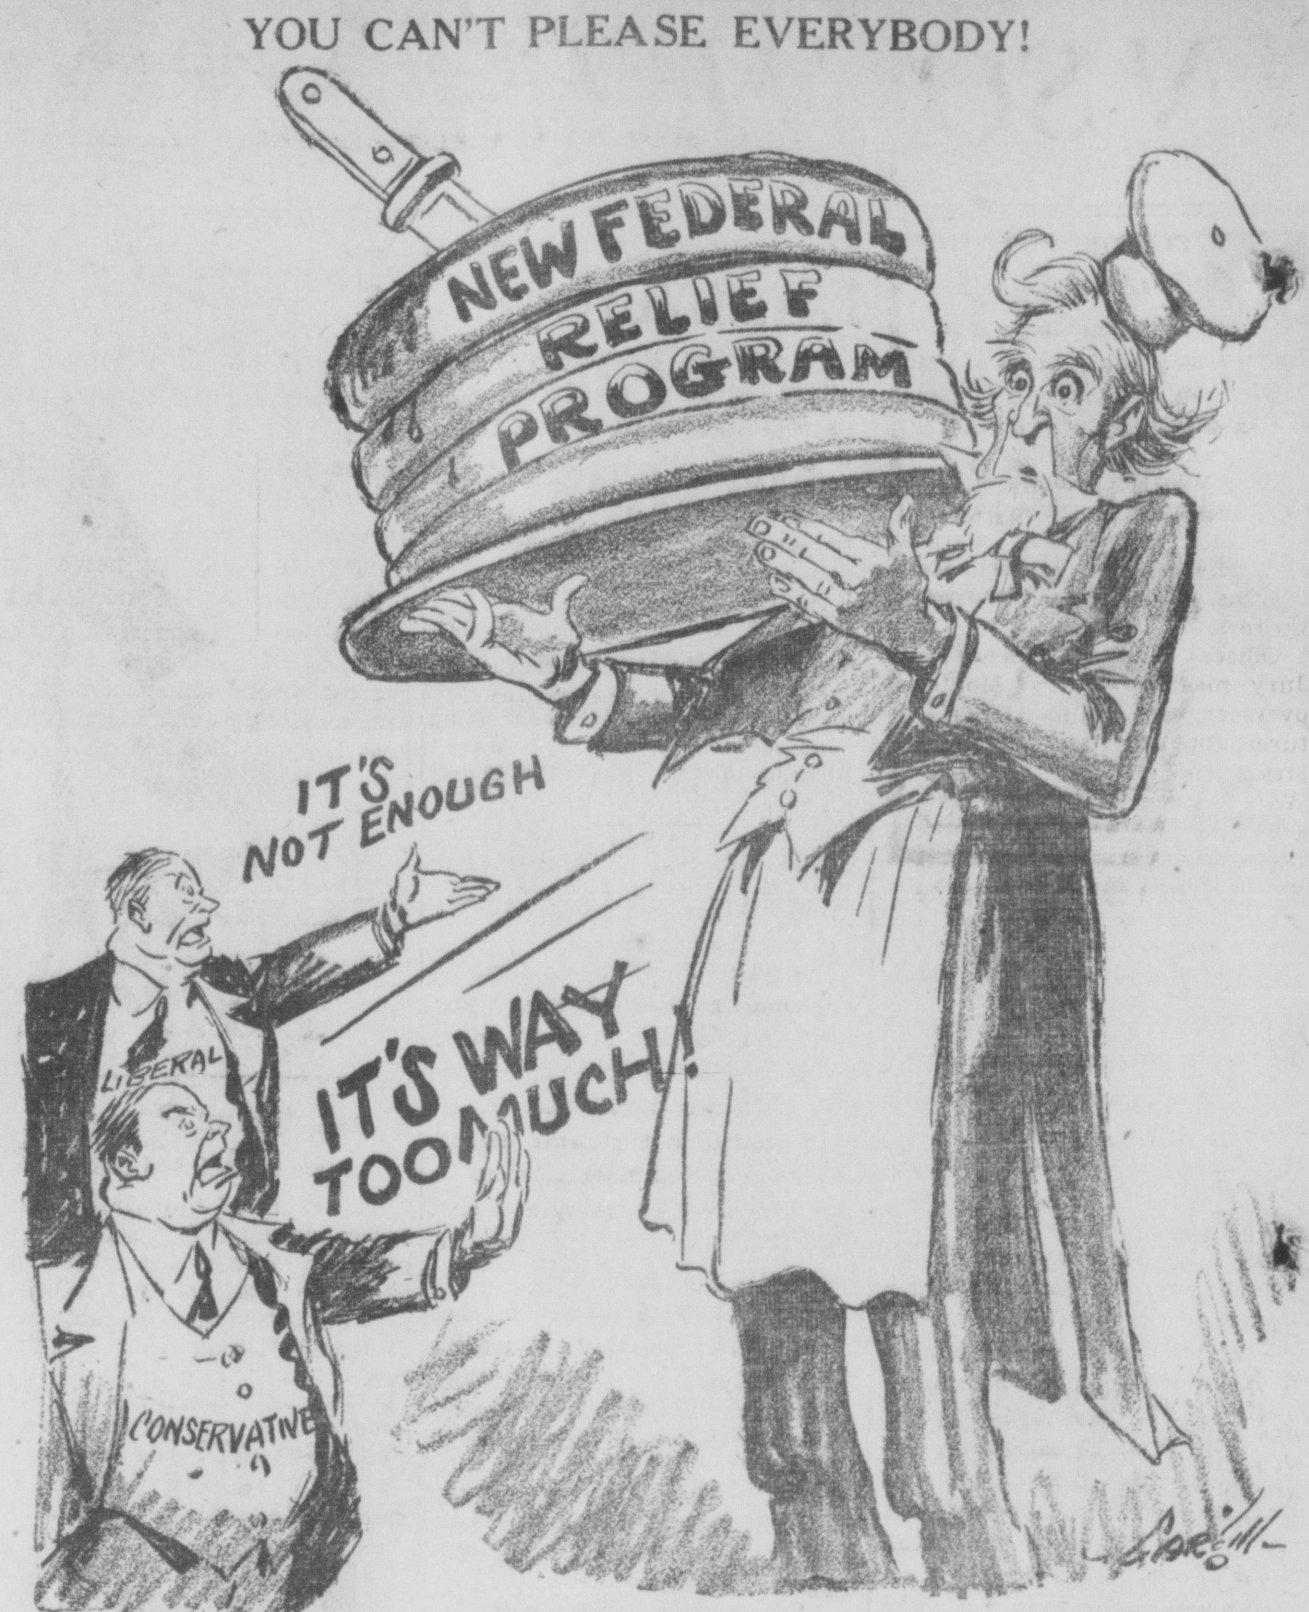

"I don't mind." Her heart was still beating hard. Her slim hands tried to go on desperately with the braid of anemones. Suddenly she could see herself as she must seem to Jerry; slim and young and graceful; a little enigmatic; alluring. It was a flash, almost telepathic. She had never seemed like that to herself. Very simple and easy to understand; rather harried. The girl Jerry saw was rather wonderful.

She went on with the anemones, her hands flashing in and out. . . . Perhaps it was vanity—one of those silly moments silly girls had. Well . . .

He was going steadily on, the little accent that she recognized as southern showing itself as he became more in earnest.

"I can always make a good livin'. Always have. Always dropped jobs when I liked, even since the depression, picked them up again. Always have a little anchor to windward to carry me or loan the boys. I'm not a spendthrift or a drifter, but I travel light. I have an old house down in Carolina, and a farm with an old darky working it; it's an anchor to windward—I go there sometimes to do writing, and it would always carry me. I mean, there'd always be a margin of safety. I'm that sort, queerly enough. But my idea of life is out and across. Anybody I took along with me, my way of living, would have plenty of excitement, plenty of change, plenty of foreign countries seen from the inside, not the conducted tours; even a hairbreadth escape or so if they insisted. They'd be in the middle of next year's happenings, and they're pretty exciting right now. The world's turning over. They'd never have a big estate of butlers or a lady's maid or social routine—but darn it, they'd have fun!"

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND

The screen version of Daniel Kussell's delightful Broadway comedy hit, "The Party's Over," will make its local bow at the Grand Theatre Wednesday, with a prominent cast of featured players headed by the comic Stuart Erwin and Ann Southern of "Let's Fall in Love" fame.

The new film is written in the hilarious vein of "Three Corners Moon," one of the last season's sprightliest comedy-dramas, and depicts the uproarious goings-on in the domestic relations of the Blakely household.

AT THE CLIFTONA

"Drip—drip—drip!" Water from a leaking roof dripped incessantly into a pan on the floor of the set, as, lighted by flashes of lightning, Mady Christians enacted her weird murder scene in "A Wicked Woman." Distasteful thunder rumbled. She fell to the floor in a faint.

"Drip—drip—drip!" The water kept up a regular cadence of sound.

"That," explained Charles Brabin, director of the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, which opens tonight at the Cliftona Theatre, "is just an instance of what the advent of sound in pictures can give us. It heightens suspense or horror by tricks with sound like these."

Feet and Skin of Diabetic Must Be Carefully Tended

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
DIET ALONE, or insulin and diet alone, are not the only factors in treatment which the diabetic patient should watch.

The feet and the skin are parts of the body which should be most carefully guarded.

The diabetic is especially liable to foot trouble. There are conditions named "diabetic gangrene" and "diabetic ulcer," both occurring during the course of diabetes, almost exclusively on the feet.

The first matter which should receive attention is the way the feet are shod and protected. Soft woolen stockings are essential, and it may come as a surprise to know that they are more comfortable and cooler in the summer than the thinner varieties. The important thing is that the feet should be kept warm and the circulation evened in this way.

Well fitting shoes are the next requisite. The skin of the feet should never be irritated or rubbed. A callus or a blister may be the beginning of something far more serious.

Extreme care should be observed not to bruise the feet. Stubbing the toe may be a joke to a healthy person, but it is liable to be anything else to the diabetic.

While a good circulation should be maintained in the feet by warm stockings, they should not suffer congestion. The use of a footstool will promote return of blood from the feet, simply by its elevation.

And it will do something else, in that it will protect the back of the legs from pressure on the edge of a too high chair.

Tight garters, which might induce swelling of the veins, are to be avoided for the same reasons.

As to the skin, it has been suggested that Job probably suffered from diabetes on account of the intensity of his complaints about his boils. For some reason not wholly understood, the skin in diabetes is extremely subject to infection, and boils and carbuncles form much more readily in diabetics than in normal people. Whether this is due to the fact that the blood is rich in excess amount of sugar and forms a better culture medium or not is debatable. At any rate, it is known that if the blood sugar is kept down by diet, it minimizes the chances for this complication.

At the same time, the skin itself needs attention, and only the best and purest soap should be used for cleansing purposes. The question of the cleanliness of the diabetic's skin is far more important than in a person unaffected by the disease. As in the case of the feet, however, care should be taken that rough scrubbing and scrubbing must be avoided. Such irritations as those that come from tight or jagged collar-bands should all receive their proper attention.

A final accessory method of treatment in diabetes is exercise. Many diabetics learn that if they take a moderate amount of exercise they are able to consume more starchy food than they would ordinarily, without showing sugar. This is perhaps natural, when we remember that the glucose in the blood is oxidized in the muscles when they are at work, and apparently this extra effort of exercise will not only reduce the blood sugar, but also increase the tolerance of the individual.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By E. V. SHEPARD, Famous Bridge Teacher

SHOWING A 6-5 HAND

SOMETIMES it is very important for partner to know that your second suit shown is a long one, as was the case with the following hands held by North and South. Both sides were vulnerable.

♠ K Q J 10 4
♥ A 10 4
♦ J 8
♣ J 9 4

♠ A 9
♥ J 5 2
♦ A 9 5 3
♣ Q 6 5

♠ 8 6 5 3 2
♦ Q 10 7 6

Bidding went: South, 1-Club; West, 1-Diamond; North, 1-Spade; East, 2-Diamonds, probably hoping that more spades would be bid; South, 2-Hearts; North, 2-Spades; East, 3-Diamonds, just as a game saver; South, 3-Hearts; North, 4-Clubs; South, 4-Hearts, to show that clubs held 6 cards and hearts held 5. As probably the same number of losers were held at both calls, and knowing that there were 4 chances for game at hearts, against 1 chance to win 5-odd at the minor call, North passed, which was a display of sound judgment, worth remembering.

West led off his Ace of diamonds, and North won the trick.

Three rounds of winning hearts followed, leaving the lead in dummy. The J of clubs was led. East played the 2. South was undecided whether to go for the drop or take the finesse. He would have led one of his top honors before leading trumps, had he not been afraid that a ruff of the suit might be possible on its first round. Finally South let the J run, and West was in with his Q of clubs, just as he would have been had South played for the drop. But that was the last trick which South had to lose. He ruffed a return lead of a diamond, taking his last trump, but that did not matter. South held 5 established clubs which he ruffed for one trick above his contract.

Of course the defenders could have held the tricks down to 4-odd, had West taken his Ace of spades. Had the contract been 5-Clubs, South would have gone down a trick.

West would have had in sight a spade and 1 diamond trick, with third trick due the Q of trumps.

North would not have done so well at spades, while West must have lost had he tried to play for game at diamonds.

County Ohio State Club Planning to Bring Schmidt Here For Spring Meet

As part of its 1935 program to interpret Ohio State university to Pickaway-co, the Pickaway-co Ohio State Club, comprised of students attending the university, is making arrangements to bring Francis A. Schmidt, the famed Buckeye grid coach, to the city during the spring vacation in March. It was learned today.

A schedule of plans designed to make the Pickaway club one of the most active of its kind on the campus was outlined at a meeting of the group at the university during the past week by Pat J. Kirwin, S. Court-st. president.

Among the activities planned are visits by the group to the various high schools during the spring vacation in an attempt to interest outstanding high school seniors in Ohio State; a meeting in February on the university campus at which Clark K. Hunsicker, this city's representative to the General Assembly, and State Senators August Weber and Paul Genger of the 10th district will be guests, and an all-day picnic for Ohio State students sometime during the summer at the home of Mrs. Bernard Young, Pickaway-twp.

The club has entered a team in the intra-mural basketball competition sponsored by the university athletic department. Floyd Graves, former Pickaway-twp star, is captain.

At the spring vacation meeting to be held in Circleville, a feature of the evening's program will be the showing of motion pictures of football games played by Ohio State last fall. If Coach Schmidt is unable to appear, another member of the athletic department will substitute, according to tentative plans.

Seventy-two students are now enrolled at Ohio State from Pickaway-co. All are members of the Pickaway club and entitled to participate in the monthly meetings. One of the first social meetings was enjoyed this week by the club. Edward S. Drake, a well known university personality, is adviser to the club.

THINKS CORN - HOG PROGRAM CHANGES TO PROVE POPULAR

Several of the changes in the simplified 1935 corn-hog contract will meet with the approval of practically all Pickaway-co corn-hog farmers, in the opinion of F. K. Blair, county agricultural agent who attended a district meeting of local Corn-Hog officials held at Chillicothe last Saturday.

For one thing, there are no "contracted acres" in the new AAA contract. And those who sign will be asked to adjust their corn and hog production only 10 per cent below production during the 1932-33 base years instead of 20 per cent in corn and 25 per cent in hogs as was the case with last year's contract.

"Contracted acres" are now termed "shifted acres" and may be used for growing any crop other than corn for any purpose. Also, there is no limitation on the total area in the farm that may be devoted to cultivated crops.

Benefit payments on corn have been raised from 30 cents to 35 cents a bushel less administrative expenses. Benefit payments on hogs remain at the same rate but since only a 10 per cent reduction is required instead of a 25 per cent cut, the total payments per farm will be about two-fifths as large as they were last year.

Local committeemen who attended the meeting were particularly pleased that much of the red tape has been eliminated from the procedure required of contract signers.

Bishops Turn Back Cincinnati; Westerville Team Show Surprising Power

By International News Service

The strain of excited speculation was relieved today in Ohio's collegiate basketball race—particularly in the Buckeye conference. While most teams were marking time, pending completion of semester examinations, the Battling Bishops of Ohio Wesleyan University and the University of Cincinnati Bearcats clashed at Cincinnati last night in a game of momentous import to the Buckeye League race.

It took two overtime periods, but the Bishops emerged victorious 41 to 31, and with a firm hold on the conference leadership.

And while Wesleyan was struggling to seize the top rung in the Buckeye league, Otterbein college won new plaudits in the Ohio conference race by trouncing Oberlin 55 to 29.

Ohio Wesleyan's victory last night marked the first time Cincinnati had gone down to defeat in 12 games this season. It also marked their first defeat in the last 17 games, counting five tilts last season.

Defending champions in the Buckeye league race, the Bishops team was shorter by almost three inches to the man than the Bearcats. Wesleyan displayed an offensive, however, that refused to be checked. Clovis Stark, center, was the star of the Bishop team, leading the scoring with 14 points to his credit.

Wesleyan led the Bearcats 20 to 16 at the half, but Cincinnati managed to stage a rally and forge ahead during the last six minutes of the regular period. Then the Bishops knotted the score and the game went into its first overtime.

OTTERBEIN SURPRISES

Last Saturday, Otterbein did the unexpected and defeated the previously undefeated Mount Union aggregation, 43 to 24. The feat was a complete surprise—even to Mount Union, probably—and it turned the conference standings topsy-turvy.

While the Wesleyan-Cincinnati and the Otterbein-Oberlin games last night held the spotlight of attention, several other games were on last night's schedule. Their results were:

Wittenberg 25; Dayton 31.
Bowling Green 30; Ohio Northern 22.

Ohio College of Chiropractic 35; Adrian of Michigan 22.

Muskingum 37; Kenyon 26.

Wittenberg's victory last night was "happy days" for the Lutherans. Earlier in the season, they had been regarded as "easy pickings." They have hit a winning stride in recent games last night and refused to be stopped last night by the University of Dayton.

Babies to Be Tattooed

BUDAPEST—All gypsy babies in the Marcali District must be tattooed with their name and birth place. This was decided at the autumn meeting of the local agricultural committee, which is seeking to force gypsies to stop roving and settle down in villages. The tattooing is designed to prevent the children when grown up from "shedding" their identity.

Unless they recover, and quickly, Fred Grant and George Speakman, regular forward and guard of the high school cage team, will not play against Marysville Friday in a Central Buckeye league game.

Both athletes are confined to their homes with la grippe.

If neither should be able to play Styers and Henry would probably start at the forward and guard positions.

SPYING on SPORTS

By BILL BRAUCHER
Central Press Sports Writer

Taking the bit in his teeth, Robert S. Dowst, race track authority picks for February Esquire the 10 greatest horse champions since 1900 as follows: Hermis, Colin, Exterminator, Sir Barton, Man O'War, Crusader, Reigh Count, Gallant Fox, Twenty Grand and Equipoise.

Mr. Dowst knows his horses, of course, but during the next few weeks, I'd like to read his mail. The boys in the back room are sure to get into his hair.

Give 'Em Head Start

The first conspicuous omission on the list seems to be Sysonby, whose skeleton stands in the Natural History Museum, in New York City, and there are still bearded hoss players about (who haven't died broke) ready to tell you Sysonby was the super horse of all time.

Ancient track men will stand right up and swear Sysonby could have given Man O'War a sixteenth of a mile head start (no more, no less) and beaten him a length over the Derby distance.

Take the Great Republic of 1905 at Saratoga as an example. Sysonby was left standing at the post thinking what a disgrace it was to be thrown in with such a lot of cheap hides. The field was nearly a half furlong on its way when Sysonby's jockey stirred him from his reverie. Sid Sysonby was right up with them when the quarter-mile post was reached. He went right on past.

In the field that day were the great runners Oiseau and Broomstick. And by the way, what's the matter with having Broomstick on the list? He should beat at least two of the horses listed over any kind of distance or going, and he was held by many as the greatest sire that ever a colt called daddy. Broomstick died in 1931 at the age of 31, and since 1910 Broom horses have swept up more than $3,500,000 in winnings in all the countries of the world.

Oh, Look Here

Also, how about Zev, and Sun Beau, and Phar Lap? Could your Reigh Count go with Phar Lap, Mr. Dowst? and how far? After running clockwise in Australia until he was five years old, he was brought over to America, put into reverse gear you might say, and won the Agua Caliente so easily it was a laugh. How far could a horse like Crusader run with Phar Lap?

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSEER

OF COUNTY TOURNAMENT

Just a little over four weeks until the Pickaway-co Basket Ball tournament. Dr. Blackburn, Supl. of the New Holland schools and manager of the 1935 tournament, is making preparations for this year's big event and he predicts that it will be bigger and better than ever.

The 1935 tournament will be played in five sessions on the same general plan as last year. It will open on Saturday afternoon, February 23. The second session will be held that evening. The second round of play is scheduled for Friday night, March 1, followed by the semi-finals on Saturday afternoon, March 2, and the finals that night.

Thirteen boy's teams and four girl's teams, all of Pickaway-co, will take part in the affair. The drawing for positions will take place in the same manner as last year. The four girl's teams that will play in the tournament will be determined by their winnings in the six-game series.

The superintendents of the various High Schools of the county were greatly pleased with the marked improvement in sportsmanship displayed by competing athletes as well as by the spectators during the 1934 tournament. Good sportsmanship displays good citizenship and this is what the teachers of the county are trying to develop.

When the first ball is tossed, officially, opening the 1935 Pickaway-co tournament, on Saturday afternoon, Feb. 23, Kroger Babb, the widely known athletic official, will do the tossing. People interested in basket ball all over the county will be very happy to learn that Babb has been secured for the 1935 event.

It has not been announced officially by Dr. Blackburn, but we are inclined to believe that a satisfactory arrangement would be made to have the tournament in the same place and under the same terms as last year.

RAH FOR BISHOPS

The victory of Ohio Wesleyan university over the University of Cincinnati is pleasing to local cage followers—The Bishops led by Clovis Stark have a splendid basket ball team — Stark caged the goal that won the ball game—This blonde athlete will be remembered as a star of the Columbus North hi team a couple of years ago which went to the finals of the state tournament only to be drubbed by the Avertits of Akron West—North isn't doing so well this year.

STAR HAS CHANCE

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., Jan. 23 —Physicians gave Valentine Bialis, former Olympic skater, better than an even chance of recovery today in his valiant fight following amputation of a leg.

Unless an unexpected setback occurs the Utica, N. Y., athlete will live, it was stated at St. Anthony's hospital, where Bialis was taken in critical condition from loss of blood. His leg was crushed when a train struck his automobile at an icy grade crossing.

The skater's condition remained precarious until last night.

FUCHS TO REBUILD BRAVES 9, HE SAYS

BOSTON, Jan. 2—Judge Emil Fuchs, president of the Boston Braves baseball team, today had promised that the club will be increased in strength before it launches its 1935 National league season. New players will be obtained in purchases and trades under direction of Manager Bill McKechnie.

President Fuchs also promised to "lay his cards on the table," and discuss frankly the situation into which the Judge has plunged the club by relinquishing the lease on Braves field, leaving the team without a home.

TO HONOR DIZZY

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 —Dizzy Dean, great right-handed of the St. Louis Cardinals, will be awarded the annual most valuable player award by the baseball writers' association at the annual dinner of the New York chapter here on Sunday, Feb. 3, it was revealed today. Awards for meritorious service to baseball over a long period of years will go to Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, and Rabbit Maranville, the shortstop of the Boston Braves. All three will attend the dinner.

Stephens' friends have a strong suspicion.

On various occasions, he has found it necessary to criticize caustically certain of the youthful attorneys, who clutter up the legal staffs of the recovery agencies, for the sloppy and incompetent manner in which they were doing their work.

It is known that Stephens' admonitions were resented and there has been much hostile muttering against him in these quarters.

Labor Victory

There is one provision in the Administration's omnibus social security bill where the hand of organized labor guided the drafting pen.

This section is in the unemployment insurance portion of the measure.

It provides that no worker shall be disqualified from receiving benefits "because he participates in a strike, refuses to take work at standards below those prevailing in the locality, or because he refuses to join a company union or insists upon joining the labor union of his own choosing."

Old Guardians in the inner council objected to this wording, wanted it made less specific.

But Senator Wagner, labor champion and titular author of the bill, insisted on the provision.

It is certain to be challenged vigorously by employer groups and its backers expect it to be one of the chief battle grounds of the social security legislation.

DAVEY ACTS TO ORGANIZE LAW ENFORCEMENT

RECRUITS FOR POSTS CALLED

Liquor Department Division to Be Nucleus for Agency; Mathews in Charge

COLUMBUS, Jan. 23—Without waiting for the legislature to act, Governor Davey today took steps toward the formation of a state-wide law enforcement agency which he hopes will function as efficiently as the U. S. Department of Justice's bureau of investigation in dealing with major criminals.

The state liquor department's enforcement divisions, whose chief Edmund G. Mathews, henceforth will be responsible solely to Davey, will be used as the nucleus of the proposed public safety department. If the legislature decides, to grant the governor's urgent request for laws creating the new department, the latter in all probability will then absorb Mathews' division. But with or without legislative sanction, Davey is determined to set up his state bureau of investigation.

CALLS RECRUITS

He broadcasts a call for recruits for the liquor department enforcement unit, which now has 84 operatives. Only the "good men" among the incumbents will be retained, Davey declared. The others must surrender their jobs to alert young men, preferably college-trained in law or accountancy who must measure up to standards of the federal sleuths.

At least for the present Mathews will be retained and given a chance to show what he can do unhampered," said the governor. "Technically he will be under the liquor director but the director will be instructed to keep hands off while we rebuild the unit after the pattern of the federal division of investigation."

Simultaneously the governor announced that when present state liquor licenses expire beginning about the first of February, none will be renewed for longer than six months and possibly for only three months. Meanwhile, all license-holders will be investigated as to their qualifications for dispensing liquor.

"While I do not propose to put on any puritanical campaigns," the executive commented, "I do propose that the major provisions of the liquor control act shall be enforced. That is what we are leading up to with our investigation of his license."

SELLING OVER LIMIT

Davey has information that a large number of licensees are winking at the law by selling far more bootleg spirituous liquor than the legal product purchased from the state monopoly. Where there is adequate evidence of this being done the retailer will be deprived of his license.

Oakley Spaght, a Summit-co state representative in the 90th General Assembly, is still being considered for state liquor director or to succeed Joseph H. Scobell, of Cleveland, appointed by Former Governor White but not confirmed by the Senate, Davey disclosed.

There is a constitutional inhibition against a former legislator holding an office created while he was a member until one year after his term in the assembly expires, but Davey intimated this obstacle will be circumvented even if it becomes necessary, as it apparently will be, to change the law creating the office of liquor director.

Prepares for Trial

Ena Gregory Rogell

Mrs. Ena Gregory Rogell is shown in court at Los Angeles as her hotly contested divorce suit was marked for trial. Her husband, Al Rogell, film director, charges that his wife, known on the screen as Marion Douglas, was found in the home of William V. R. Smith, wealthy Beverly Hills attorney, following a midnight raid. Mrs. Rogell has filed a cross suit charging her husband with cruelty.

small per cent of merchants throughout the state have as yet failed to obtain their vendor's licenses. He expressed confidence that there would be 100 per cent co-operation.

Today, the 270 inspectors of the tax commission were winding up their check of merchants in the state, advising them in detail as to their operations under the sales tax law so that the tax collection machinery can get under way Monday without a hitch.

On Monday, according to Davis, the inspectors will begin a check of the merchants and assist them with any problems that may come up in connection with the administration of the tax.

Bannister Files Suit; Names Wife as Unfit

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 23—Ann Harding, blonde film star, today was said to be "too ill to comment" on the action of her former husband Harry Bannister in branding her as "not a fit and proper person" to care for their six-year-old daughter, Jane.

Miss Harding recently won complete custody of the child in a Reno court, where she and Bannister were divorced some years ago.

In filing his action to compel the star to relinquish the custody of their daughter, Bannister, through his attorney, Byron C. Hanna, attacked the validity of the Reno decree, charging his former wife is and has been a resident of Los Angeles.

ELKS LAUNCH DRIVE HITTING 'REDS' IN U. S.

Petition Placed In Lodge Home, Available to All, Memorializing Congress

Calling for "the flaming spirit of a crusade" Michael F. Shannon, Grand Exalted Ruler of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks of the United States of America, has launched a memorial to congress for legislation deemed necessary to eradicate Communist and other subversive influence in the country.

This determination came with full knowledge that subversive interests are being allowed to grow and spread unchecked by official action of our federal government and that corrective bills of two sessions of congress have been permitted to die in committee. A challenge to all units of the Order came in the form of a resolution from the Elks of Concord, Massachusetts, whose home stands almost on the spot where "the embattled farmers stood" on that memorable day in April, 1775.

COVER EIGHT POINTS
The petitions now in the hands of the 1400 Elk Lodges throughout the country cover eight points of legislation:

1. Investigation of all subversive activities by the department of justice with ample funds provided to furnish personnel and cover expenses, with discretionary authority to publish facts concerning individuals or organizations seeking to overthrow the government by force or violence.

2. Outlawing organizations having for their purpose the overthrow by force or violence of the American constitutional government.

3. Making it a felony to advocate, promote or encourage such overthrow.

4. Denying use of the mails to publications advocating such overthrow or affiliated with outlawed organizations.

5. Prohibit interstate transportation of such publications.

6. Making certain deportation of aliens seeking the overthrow of the United States Government.

7. Denying entry into the United States of aliens known to be out of harmony with American form of government.

8. Providing for revocation of naturalization of naturalized citizens advocating overthrow or change of government through force or violence.

With cooperation of The American Legion, the Junior Chamber of Commerce, various service clubs and patriotic organizations, the citizens of each community will be afforded the opportunity of signing, thus indicating to their Congressman and Senators the conclusion that the time is at hand to enact such legislative measures as will permanently remove the menace of those who seek the overthrow of the Government by force or violence.

The petitions from all communities will be assembled at The Elks National Memorial Building in Chicago on February 22nd, Washington's Birthday, and there grouped by congressional districts and taken to Washington for formal presentation to the United States Senate and to the House of Representatives.

Leland E. Pontius, Exalted Ruler of Circleville Elks Lodge No. 77 has received an allotment of petitions with instructions for local handling; a copy may be found at any time at the Elks home for those citizens who will want to sign. Legionnaires, Chambers of Commerce, and other patriotic citizens will join the members of the Elks to see to it that these petitions are signed freely so that they may go on to Washington as nearly 100 per cent representative of this community as possible.

Thus there will be a demonstration of the aroused spirit of Americanism that exists in this country today.

The members of the Kiwanis club as individuals signed the petition 100 per cent at their meeting Monday evening.

LIQUOR LICENSES FACE DAVEY QUIZ

COLUMBUS, Jan. 23—A sweeping investigation of all liquor licenses is planned by Governor Martin L. Davey when the present permit expires in February. New licenses will be granted on a temporary basis only, Davey has announced. He also announced a plan to revamp the enforcement division.

MEETING CANCELLED
Due to the weather conditions prayer meeting at the Presbyterian church tonight will be omitted.

Bruno's Nemesis

Walter Lyle

If Walter Lyle hadn't checked up on a $10 gold certificate, noting the license number on the automobile of the man who presented it at his gasoline station in the Bronx, there might never have been a trial at Flemington, and Bruno Hauptmann, in whose garage part of the Lindbergh ransom money later was found, might never have been arrested. Lyle is shown testifying in the trial of Hauptmann for the Lindbergh baby's murder.

headed by Hauptmann and his wife, Anna. Reilly would not disclose who the other witnesses will be, though one of them is expected to be Mrs. Greja Henkel, the young blonde matron who was a friend of both Hauptmann and the late Isidor Fisch, who Hauptmann claims gave him the $14,600 in ransom money police found hidden on his premises.

ALIBI IS DEFENSE
Hauptmann's principal defense will be his alibi for the night of the crime, Reilly said. The attorney would not disclose what this alibi would be, other than that the defense will show Hauptmann was at Frederickson's bakery in the Bronx when Baby Lindbergh was being kidnaped from the nursery in his rambling home near Hopewell the night of March 1, 1932.

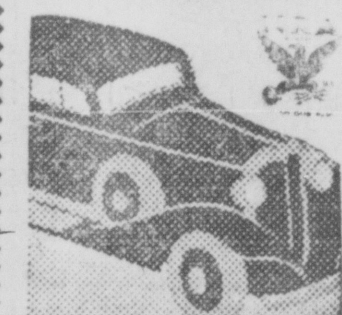

"We will have plenty of witnesses to bear out Hauptmann's story of where he was the night of the abduction," Reilly said. "I cannot make public who they are at this time because of the death threats which are being made against defense witnesses."

Reilly promised to have a statement which will 'knock your eyes out' on the day the defense winds up its case.

THE INDUSTRIAL COMMISSION

AMONG the investigations scheduled by the present state administration, none will attract more state-wide interest and attention than the operation of the Ohio Workmen's Compensation act as administered by the state industrial commission. The report of the investigating committee appointed some months ago to look into the affairs of the commission is rather vague and, while it covers the period of years since the law has been in force, it does not tell us what is wrong with this particular branch of state government. Passing the buck from one administration to another seems to have been the policy of each succeeding administration, but this does not clear the situation, nor does it let the public know what is wrong or who is to blame.

This department of government is in reality a sacred trust, administered by the state. The millions of dollars it handles is not state money—it belongs to the industrial employees and employers. The state collects the premiums for state industrial insurance and pays out the money according to the claims filed—at least that is the theory under which it is supposed to operate.

The employers of labor throughout the state pay the required amounts covering each employee into the vast fund, but when it comes to getting money out of the fund with which to pay legitimate claims, that's a different story.

Complaints come from all sections of the state to the effect that it is almost impossible to get legitimate claims adjusted and paid within any reasonable length of time. Victims of industrial accidents take all the necessary steps toward collecting what is due them in compensation, and then await the pleasure of the commission administering the fund. It is often necessary to employ attorneys, doctors, experts in all lines, attend hearings, and spend more than the claim is worth in attempting to collect it. And in the meantime the claimant may be in actual want for the necessities of life.

This is a state of affairs that should not be permitted to exist. If a claim is legitimate, it should be paid without unnecessary delay. If illegitimate, the facts should be brought to light and punishment meted out to those who have had any part in attempting to chisel into the fund.

The law was passed for the benefit and protection of both employer and employee and it should function as such without unnecessary delays, political preference or interference.

ANCESTOR WORSHIP

MOST people today are interested only in making both ends meet, but even in these times there are persons spending money in goodly sums on one end—their family beginnings.

Curiosity, social climbing and vanity have made the building family trees a large and prosperous industry even now. The high price on the heads of ancestors is freely paid.

British genealogists prosper on the dollars of Americans with more money than family knowledge. Few people bother about their family trees until they arrive financially, when many go into the matter somewhat deeply, particularly in a financial way.

A genealogist writing his memoirs cites only one instance of a customer being elated over the discovery of black sheep in his family. He had his family tree—gibbeted highwayman, sheep-stealer and all—illuminated on vellum.

Family trees cost as much as the genealogist can inveigle from his client. In few of them is there as much comfort as in a cord of fireplace wood yet their cost runs up into the thousands of dollars.

Genealogy seems to be a futile science or industry, and yet such things keep money in circulation and make for prosperity.

Daughters are cheaper in one way. The cars they wreck while learning to drive belong to boy friends.

Home is a place where somebody else is in the bathroom. The punishment of a liar is that he loses reputation and can't hurt an enemy by telling the truth on him.

Little Sister

BY MARGARET WIDDER

READ THIS FIRST:

Leila Madison, an orphan, has been trying to halt the elopement of her reckless young sister, Bet, with Addison Huntington, a romantic radical. Jerry Redmond, a newspaper reporter, has been adding to the cause of his friendship for Addison's brother who was Jerry's college roommate. They are all at Leila's Westchester home where Addison and Jerry meet Aunt Minnie and her neighbor, Mrs. Johnston-Hodges, mother of Orton Johnston-Hodges, whom Leila expects to marry. They have come from Bet's New York apartment where Addison, disguised as a girl, narrowly escaped the police who sought him for questioning in connection with the whereabouts of an acquaintance named Jarrell, an alleged forger. Aunt Minnie tells Addison about the improvements and how the old residents of Fernwood Manor are trying to keep their bathing beach exclusive property. This shocks Addison's socialist philosophy. Jerry phones next day and arranges a meeting with the girls. Addison drops in to see Leila. Orton hints at a formal proposal but Leila isn't as excited as she expected to be. The next day Jerry arrives for their outing and drives off with Leila. Leila finds herself enjoying her interlude.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 23

LEILA and JERRY went out with their burdens, giggling shamelessly. They drove turn about, till the roads had become twisted country roads, and the greenery Jerry had continued to insist on began to appear. He was very particular. Finally, somewhere near Ridgefield, they found the perfect picnic ground and ate; Jerry very particular about his hors d'oeuvre. They had completely forgotten paper napkins; fortunately there were newspapers in the car. Jerry never fussed. It suddenly came to Leila that this was perhaps the best quality in the human race; most of the people she knew did fuss. She said so.

"Why should I? If you can't get or find or take a thing, pass on to the next. That's the most labor-saving device I know."

They had reached the berries which were to be for dessert, along with the sponge cake and iced coffee. "Is that your creed?"

"Always more or less has been. Everybody's creed comes a cropper once in a while. Sooner or later you come to the place where you find it doesn't work. I have a horrible feeling mine may be about to go back on me."

"As how?"

"I think I am about to discover something which I can't take—or pass on to something else from."

"Oh, don't be so earnest. We were having such a good time, 10 miles up in the air."

"You've always had to be pretty earnest, haven't you, Leila? No time off for the normal idler—too busy acting as keeper? . . . Do you know," he said, his voice changing from a note which had been very gentle, "this meal is like the crowning glory of the western menu: Square, 25; gorge, 30; regular gorge, 45. I would do anything in reason for you, Leila, but I cannot finish these sponge cakes. We bought exactly once and a half too much. One always does. You should have brought a dog. Haven't you a dog who is so hopeless as to prize that it doesn't matter what he eats?"

"How did you know the name of my kennels?" she asked suddenly. "I have that kind of memory, it's part of my job."

He was lying on his back on the smaller automobile rug, snoring, as relaxed as a cat. There wasn't anything she needed to say, or do, or be. She had the other rug; she was leaning back against a tree. The moon was going to overlap the sunset; it was sliding up the sky even now. He went on irrelevantly, "I was putting that money away—by a miracle. I had a rent savings bank on a trip to the interior of China. Everybody's nuts over Russian trips, but China's the real place. A book about China—gosh! Well, noble-hearted little Jerry, has saved his godchild from a term in jail at the expense of six months more of toil in the great city."

"I do seem a romantic fool to you; there's nobody as completely chained down to your sort of life as a girl brought up on legends of vanished grandeur; the grandeur is hand-somer even than it looks to the ones it hasn't quit on."

"What do you know about legends of vanished grandeur?" She was a little cross; every so often she was cross with Jerry. She'd started that way.

"Heard 'em," said Jerry placidly, with a disarming smile and a wriggle closer to her. "Smile at your Aunt Minnie's tea table. Hear 'em. Saw 'em. Ate 'em. Got complete picture, Leila dear. My mind automatically registered the first five minutes, exactly the sort of cheap, but effective sob story—or feature or both—background for the whole thing. Ruling passion strong in death. I'm good, child! . . . Which," he added suddenly, sitting up and speaking rather crossly also, "is the sort of low thing Fernwood Manor's more conservative group would never say."

"Do stop acting as if I were Mrs. Johnston-Hodges!"

"Well," said Jerry coolly, "to do that is only to anticipate, isn't it?"

It was the sort of point-blank question—calmly put, difficult to escape from—that only reporters can ask. Leila chose her exit. After all, she was just coming to Orton yet. And . . . after all, here in the spring woods, with the sunset and the feeling of being somewhere in strange delightful space with a strange friend she had known forever . . . after all, the road down which she had been leisurely walking because it seemed the only road there was, the appropriate road, the excellent road . . . after all, the end of that road was not a necessity. It did not seem, this minute, as she smiled into Jerry's dark blue eyes that watched her quietly through little smoke lines, and she played with a braid she was making from grass and anemones, even a likelihood—the end she had been facing willingly, hopefully, for a year or so now.

"Anticipate anything you like. But that particular anticipation is a little too much of a good thing even for anybody with your powers of imagination."

After she had said it, she felt like a liar. But after all, Orton had said nothing, actually, yet—and certainly she had never been given the chance to say an actual formal Yes or No herself. After all—her heart sprang and against her side at the idea—she was free!

Jerry did not move, except to turn a little more on his side, in order to face her more directly. His eyes held hers steadily. For a moment there was a queer quietness, there in the little spring wood at sunset. Then his hand reached for hers and he said, detaching the flowers, "I began to speak again, even more slowly and easily than before."

"I've talked a lot about me. Funny, I haven't done it before for a good long time. In my trade, you get out of the way of it. Going to talk about me some more, if you don't mind."

"I don't mind." Her heart was still beating hard. Her slim hands tried to go on desperately with the braid of anemones. Suddenly she could see herself as she must seem to Jerry: slim and young and graceful; a little enigmatic; alluring. It was a flash, almost telepathic. She had never seemed like that to herself. Very simple and easy to understand; rather harried. The girl Jerry saw was rather wonderful.

She went on with the anemones, her hands flashing in and out. Perhaps it was vanity—one of those silly moments silly girls had. Well . . .

He was going steadily on, the little accent that she recognized as southern showing itself as he became more in earnest.

"I can always make a good livin'. Always have. Always dropped jobs when I liked, even since the depression, picked them up again. Always have a little anchor to windward 'o carry me or loan the boys. I'm not a spendthrift or a drifter, but I trust I don't deserve enough. But my idea of life is out and across. Anybody I took along with me, my way of living, would have plenty of excitement, plenty of change, plenty of foreign countries seen from the inside, then the conducted tours; even a little breadth, even so if they insisted. They'd be in the middle of next year's happenings, and they're pretty exciting right now. The world's turning over. They'd never have a big estate of butlers or a lady's maid or social routine—but darn it, they'd have fun!"

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND

The screen version of Daniel Kussell's delightful Broadway comedy hit, "The Party's Over," will make its local bow at the Grand Theatre Wednesday, with a prominent cast of featured players headed by the comic Stuart Erwin and Ann Southern of "Let's Fall in Love" fame.

The new film is written in the hilarious vein of "Three Cornered Moon," one of the last season's sprightliest comedy-dramas, and depicts the uproarious goings-on in the domestic relations of the Blakely household.

AT THE CLIFTONA

"Drip—drip—drip!" Water from a leaking roof dripped incessantly into a pan on the floor of the set as, lighted by flashes of lightning, Mady Christians enacted her weird murder scene in "A Wicked Woman." Distant thunder rumbled. She fell to the floor in a faint.

"Drip—drip—drip!" The water kept up a regular cadence of sound.

"That," explained Charles Brabin, director of the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, which opens tonight at the Cliftona Theatre, "is just an instance of what the advent of sound in pictures can give us. It heightens suspense or horror by tricks with sound like these."

The new picture is crammed with such unique devices. Bringing to the American screen Mady Christians, famous Viennese star of "The Waltz Dream," "Queen Louisa" and other Continental hits, it is a tense dramatic romance adapted from the famous fiction story by Anne Austin.

Feet and Skin of Diabetic Must Be Carefully Tended

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

DIET ALONE, or insulin and diet alone, are not the only factors in treatment which the diabetic patient should watch.

The feet and the skin are parts of the body which should be most carefully guarded. The diabetic is especially liable to foot trouble. There are conditions named "diabetic gangrene" and "diabetic ulcer," both occurring during the course of diabetes, almost exclusively on the feet.

The first matter which should receive attention is the soft way the feet are shod and protected. Soft woolen stockings are essential, and it may come as a surprise to know that they are more comfortable and cooler in the summer than the thinner varieties. The important thing is that the feet should be kept warm and the circulation evened in this way.

Well fitting shoes are the next requisite. The skin of the feet should never be irritated or rubbed. A callus or a blister may be the beginning of something far more serious.

Extreme care should be observed not to bruise the feet. Stubbing the toe may be a joke to a healthy person, but it is liable to be anything else to the diabetic.

While a good circulation should be maintained in the feet by warm stockings, they should not suffer congestion. The use of a footstool will promote return of blood from the feet, simply by its elevation.

At the same time, the skin itself needs attention, and only the best and purest soap should be used for cleansing purposes. The question of the cleanliness of the diabetic's skin is far more important than in a person unaffected with the disease. As in the case of the feet, however, care should be taken that rough scrubbing and scrubbing must be avoided. Such irritations as those that come from tight or jagged collar-bands should all receive their proper attention.

A final accessory method of treatment in diabetes is exercise. Many diabetics learn that if they take a moderate amount of exercise they are able to consume more starchy food than they would ordinarily, without showing sugar. This is perhaps the best, when we remember that the glucose in the blood is oxidized in the muscles when they are at work, and apparently this extra effort of exercise will not only reduce the blood sugar, but also increase the tolerance of the individual.

Bidding went: South, 1-Club; West, 1-Diamond; North, 1-Spade; East, 2-Diamonds, probably hoping that more spades would be bid; South, 2-Hearts; North, 2-Spades; East, 3-Diamonds, just as a game saver; South, 3-Hearts; North, 4-Clubs; South, 4-Hearts, to show that clubs held 6 cards and hearts held 5. As probably the same number of losers were held at both calls, and knowing that there were 4 chances for game at hearts, against 1 chance to win 5-odd at the minor call, North passed, which was a display of sound judgment, worth remembering.

West led off his Ace of diamonds. Three rounds of winning tricks followed, leaving the lead in dummy. The J of clubs was led. East played the 2. South was undecided whether to go for the drop or take the finesse. He would have led one of his top honors before leading trumps, had he not been afraid that a ruff of the suit might be possible on its first round. Finally South let the J run, and West was in with his Q of clubs, just as he would have been had South played for the drop. But that was the last trick which South had to lose. He ruffed a return lead of a diamond, taking his last trump, but that did not matter. South held 5 established clubs which he ruffed off for one trick above his contract.

Of course the defenders could have held the tricks down to 4-odd, had they taken his Ace of spades. Had the contract been 5-Clubs, South would have gone down a trick. West would have had in sight a spade and 1 diamond trick, with third trick due the Q of trumps.

North would not have done so well at spades, while West must have lost had he tried to play for game at diamonds.

Dinner Stories

A NEW WAY

Irene: When Eddie met you at the seaside last year did he fall in love with you?

Polly: Fall! Why, he dived.

And it will do something else, in that it will protect the back of the legs from pressure on the edge of a too high chair.

Tight garters, which might induce swelling of the veins, are to be avoided for the same reasons.

As to the skin, it has been suggested that Job probably suffered from diabetes on account of the intensity of his complaints about his boils. For some reason not wholly understood, the skin in diabetes is extremely subject to infection, and boils and carbuncles form much more readily in diabetics than in normal people. Whether this is due to the fact that the blood has an excess amount of sugar and forms a better culture medium or not is debatable. At any rate, it is known that if the blood sugar is kept down by diet, it minimizes the chances for this complication.

At the same time, the skin itself needs attention, and only the best and purest soap should be used for cleansing purposes. The question of the cleanliness of the diabetic's skin is far more important than in a person unaffected with the disease. As in the case of the feet, however, care should be taken that rough scrubbing and scrubbing must be avoided. Such irritations as those that come from tight or jagged collar-bands should all receive their proper attention.

County Ohio State Club Planning to Bring Schmidt Here For Spring Meet

As part of its 1935 program to interpret Ohio State university to Pickaway-co, the Pickaway-co Ohio State Club, comprised of students attending the university, is making arrangements to bring Francis A. Schmidt, the famed Buckeye grid coach, to the city during the spring vacation in March.

A schedule of plans designed to make the Pickaway club one of the most active of its kind on the campus was outlined at a meeting of the group at the university during the past week by Pat J. Kirwin, S. Court-st. president.

Among the activities planned are visits by the group to the various high schools during the spring vacation in an attempt to interest outstanding high school seniors in Ohio State; a meeting in February on the university campus at which Clark K. Hunsicker, this city's representative to the General Assembly, and State Senators August Weber and Paul Gieger of the 10th district will be guests, and an all-day picnic for Ohio State students sometime during the summer at the home of Mrs. Bernard Young, Pickaway-twp.

The club has entered a team in the intra-mural basketball competition sponsored by the university athletic department. Floyd Graves, former Pickaway-twp star, is captain.

At the spring vacation meeting to be held in Circleville, a feature of the evening's program will be the showing of motion pictures of football games played by Ohio State last fall. If Coach Schmidt is unable to appear, another member of the athletic department will substitute, according to tentative plans.

Seventy-two students are now enrolled at Ohio State from Pickaway-co. All are members of the Pickaway club and entitled to participate in the monthly meetings. One of the first social meetings was enjoyed this week by the club. Edward S. Drake, a well known university personality, is adviser to the club.

Saved by new Vitamins of Cod Liver Oil in tasteless tablets.

Thousands of firm, healthy, strong, energetic men, women and children are getting their strength and energy instead of tired, listless, nervous, thin, and weak. A young mother who could not eat or sleep after baby came got all her health back and gained 10 lbs. in less than a month.

You simply must try McCrady's at once. Remember if you don't, you'll lose 3 lbs. of firm healthy flesh in a month, get your money back, demand and get McCrady's the original and genuine Cod Liver Oil Tablets, manufactured by Good Housekeeping Institute. Refuse all substitutes. Insist on the original McCrady's. There are none better.

THINKS CORN - HOG PROGRAM CHANGES TO PROVE POPULAR

Several of the changes in the simplified 1935 corn-hog contract will meet with the approval of practically all Pickaway-co corn-hog farmers, in the opinion of F. K. Blair, county agricultural agent, who attended a district meeting of local Corn-Hog officials held at Chillicothe last Saturday.

For one thing, there are no "contracted acres" in the new AAA contract. And those who sign will be asked to adjust their corn and hog production only 10 per cent below production during the 1932-33 base years instead of 20 per cent in corn and 25 per cent in hogs as was the case with last year's contract.

"Contracted acres" are now termed "shifted acres" and may be used for growing any crop other than corn for any purpose. Also, there is no limitation on the total area in the farm that may be devoted to cultivated crops.

Benefit payments on corn have been raised from 20 cents to 35 cents a bushel less administrative expenses. Benefit payments on hogs remain at the same rate but since only a 10 per cent reduction is required instead of a 25 per cent cut, the total payments per farm will be about two-fifths as large as they were last year.

Local committeemen who attended the meeting were particularly pleased that much of the red tape has been eliminated from the procedure required of contract signers.

Bishops Turn Back Cincinnati; Westerville Team Show Surprising Power

By International News Service

The strain of excited speculation was relieved today in Ohio's collegiate basketball race, particularly in the Buckeye conference.

While most teams were marking time, pending completion of semester examinations, the Battling Bishops of Ohio Wesleyan University and the University of Cincinnati Bearcats clashed at Cincinnati last night in a game of momentous import to the Buckeye League race.

It took two overtime periods, but the Bishops emerged victorious 41 to 31, and with a firm nod on the conference leadership.

And while Wesleyan was struggling to seize the top rung in the Buckeye league, Otterbein college won new plaudits in the Ohio conference race by trouncing Oberlin 55 to 29.

Ohio Wesleyan's victory last night marked the first time Cincinnati had gone down to defeat in 12 games this season. It also marked their first defeat in the last 17 games, counting five tilts last season.

Defending champions in the Buckeye league race, the Bishops team was shorter by almost three inches to the man than the Bearcats. Wesleyan displayed an offensive, however, that refused to be checked. Clovis Stark, center, was the star of the Bishop team, leading the scoring with 14 points to his credit.

Wesleyan led the Bearcats 20 to 16 at the half, but Cincinnati managed to stage a rally and forge ahead during the last six minutes of the regular period. Then the Bishops knotted the score, and the game went into its first overtime.

OTTERBEIN SURPRISES

Last Saturday, Otterbein did the unexpected and defeated the previously undefeated Mount Union aggregation, 43 to 24. The feat was a complete surprise—even to Mount Union, probably—and it turned the conference standings topsy-turvy.

While the Wesleyan-Cincinnati and the Otterbein-Oberlin games last night held the spotlight of attention, several other games were on last night's schedule. Their results were:

Wittenberg 25; Dayton 31.

Bowling Green 30; Ohio Northern 22.

Ohio College of Chiropractic 35; Adrian of Michigan 22.

Muskingum 37; Kenyon 26.

Wittenberg's victory last night was "happy days" for the Lutherans. Earlier in the season, they had been regarded as "easy pickings." They have hit a winning stride in recent games last night and refused to be stopped last night by the University of Dayton.

Babies to Be Tattooed

BUDAPEST—All gypsy babies in the Marcell District must be tattooed with their name and birth place. This was decided at the autumn meeting of the local agricultural committee, which is seeking to force gypsies to stop roving and settle down in villages. The tattooing is designed to prevent the children when grown up from "shedding" their identity.

SPYING on SPORTS

By BILL BRAUCHER
Central Press Sports Writer

Taking the bit in his teeth, Robert S. Dowst, race track authority picks for February Esquire the 10 greatest horse champions since 1900 as follows: Hernis, Colia, Extremator, Sir Barton, Man O'War, Chusader, Reigh Count, Gallant Fox, Twenty Grand and Equiscope.

Mr. Dowst knows his horses, of course, but during the next few weeks, I'd like to read his mail. The boys in the back room are sure to get into his hair.

Give 'Em Head Start

The first conspicuous omission on the list seems to be Sysonby, whose skeleton stands in the Natural History Museum, in New York City, and there are still bearded boss players about (who haven't died broke) ready to tell you Sysonby was the super horse of all time.

Ancient track men will stand right up and swear Sysonby could have given Man O'War a sixteenth of a mile head start (no more, no less) and beaten him a length over the Derby distance.

Take the Great Republic of 1905 at Saratoga as an example. Sysonby was left standing at the post thinking what a disgrace it was to be thrown in with such a lot of cheap hicks. The field was nearly a half furlong on its way when Sysonby's jockey stirred him from his reverie. Sid Sysonby was right up with them when the quarter-mile post was reached. He went right on past.

In the 9-4 that day were the great runners Oiseau and Broomstick. And by the way, what's the matter with having Broomstick on the list? He should beat at least two of the horses listed over any kind of distance or going, and he was held by many as the greatest one that ever a roil called. Broomstick died in 1921 at the age of 31, and since 1919 10,000 horses have swept up more than $2,500,000 in winnings in all the countries of the world.

Oh, Look Here

Also, how about Zev, and Sun Beau, and Phar Lap? Could your Rough Count go with Phar Lap, Mr. Dowst? And how far? After running clockwise in Australia until he was five years old, he was brought over to America, put into reverse gear you might say, and won the Aca Caliente so easily it was a laugh. How far could a horse like Crusader run with Phar Lap?

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

OF COUNTY TOURNAMENT

Just a little over four weeks until the Pickaway-co. Basketball Tournament. Dr. Blackburn, Supt. of the New Holland schools and manager of the 1935 tournament, is making preparations for this year's big event and he predicts that it will be bigger and better than ever.

The 1935 tournament will be played in five sessions on the same general plan as last year. It will open on Saturday afternoon, February 23. The second session will be held that evening. The second round of play is scheduled for Friday night, March 1, followed by the semi-finals on Saturday afternoon, March 2, and the finals that night.

Thirteen boy's teams and four girl's teams, all of Pickaway-co. will take part in the affair. The drawing for positions will take place in the same manner as last year. The four girl's teams that will play in the tournament will be determined by their winnings in the six-game series.

The superintendents of the various High Schools of the county were greatly pleased with the marked improvement in sportsmanship displayed by competing athletes as well as by the spectators during the 1934 tournament. Good sportsmanship displays good citizenship and this is what the teachers of the county are trying to develop.

When the first ball is tossed, officially, opening the 1935 Pickaway-co. tournament, on Saturday afternoon, Feb. 23, Kroger Bab, the widely known athletic official, will do the tossing. People interested in basket ball all over the county will be very happy to learn that Bab has been secured for the 1935 event.

It has not been announced officially by Dr. Blackburn, but we are inclined to believe that a satisfactory arrangement would be made to have the tournament in the same place and under the same plans as last year.

RAH FOR BISHOPS

The victory of Ohio Wesleyan University over the University of Cincinnati is pleasing to local cage followers. The Bishops led by Clovis Stark have a splendid basketball team. Stark caged the goal that won the ball game—This blonde athlete will be remembered as a star of the Columbus North team a couple of years ago when he won the finals of the state tournament only to be dunned by the Averitts of Akron. Wesleyan isn't doing so well this year.

STAR HAS CHANCE

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., Jan. 23 (P. M.)—Valentine Bialis, former Olympic skater, better than an even chance of recovery today in his latest fight following amputation of a leg.

Unless an unexpected setback occurs the Princeton, N. Y., athlete will live, it was stated at St. Anthony's hospital, where Bialis was taken in critical condition from base of skull. His leg was crushed when a train struck his automobile at an icy grade crossing. The skater's condition remained precarious until last night.

FUCHS TO REBUILD BRAVES 9, HE SAYS

BOSTON, Jan. 2—Judge Emil Fuchs, president of the Boston Braves baseball team, today had promised that the club will be increased in strength before it launches its 1935 National league season. New players will be obtained in purchases and trades under direction of Manager Bill McKechnie.

President Fuchs also promised to "lay his cards on the table," and discuss frankly the situation into which the Judge has plunged the club by relinquishing the lease on Braves field, leaving the team without a home.

TO HONOR DIZZY

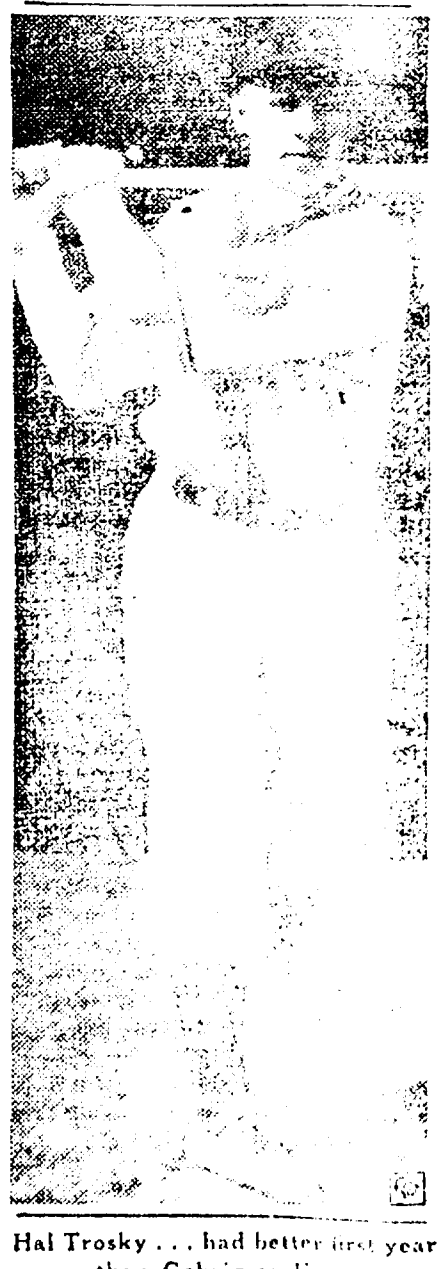

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 — Dizzy Dean, great right-handed of the St. Louis Cardinals, will be awarded the annual most valuable player award by the baseball writers' association at the annual dinner of the New York chapter here on Sunday, Feb. 3. It was revealed today. Awards for meritorious service to baseball over a long period of years will go to Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, and Rabbit Maranville, the shortstop of the Boston Braves. All three will attend the dinner.

DAVEY ACTS TO ORGANIZE LAW ENFORCEMENT

RECRUITS FOR POSTS CALLED

Liquor Department Division to Be Nucleus for Agency; Mathews in Charge

COLUMBUS, Jan. 23 Without waiting for the legislature to act, Governor Davey today took steps toward the formation of a state-wide law enforcement agency which he hopes will function as efficiently as the U. S. Department of Justice's bureau of investigation in dealing with major criminals.

The state liquor department's enforcement divisions, whose chief Edmund G. Mathews, henceforth will be responsible solely to Davey, will be used as the nucleus of the proposed public safety department.

If the legislature decides to grant the governor's urgent request for laws creating the new department, the latter in all probability will then absorb Mathews' division. But with or without legislative sanction, Davey is determined to set up his state bureau of investigation.

CALLS RECRUITS
He broadcasts a call for recruits for the liquor department enforcement unit, which now has 84 operatives. Only the "good men" among the incumbents will be retained, Davey declared. The others must surrender their jobs to alert young men, preferably college-trained in law or accountancy who must measure up to standards of the federal sleuths.

At least for the present Mathews will be retained and given a chance to show what he can do unhampered," said the governor. "Technically he will be under the liquor director but the director will be instructed to keep hands off while we rebuild the unit after the pattern of the federal division of investigation."

Simultaneously the governor announced that when present state liquor licenses expire beginning about the first of February, none will be renewed for longer than six months and possibly for only three months. Meanwhile, all license-holders will be investigated as to their qualifications for dispensing liquor.

"While I do not propose to put on any puritanical campaigns," the executive commented, "I do propose that the major provisions of the liquor control act shall be enforced. That is what we are leading up to with our investigation of his license."

SELLING OVER LIMIT
Davey has information that a large number of licensees are winking at the law by selling far more bootleg spirituous liquor than the legal product purchased from the state monopoly. Where there is adequate evidence of this being done the retailer will be deprived of his license.

Oakley Spaght, a Summit state representative in the 90th General Assembly, is still being considered for state liquor director or to succeed Joseph H. Scobell, of Cleveland, appointed by former Governor White but not confirmed by the Senate, Davey disclosed.

There is a constitutional inhibition against a former legislator holding an office created while he was a member until one year after his term in the assembly expires, but Davey intimated this obstacle will be circumvented even if it becomes necessary, as it apparently will, to change the law creating the office of liquor director.

Prepares for Trial

Ena Gregory Rogell

Mrs. Ena Gregory Rogell is shown in court at Los Angeles as her hotly contested divorce suit was marked for trial. Her husband, Al Rogell, film director, charges that his wife, known on the screen as Marion Douglas, was found in the home of William V. R. Smith, wealthy Beverly Hills attorney, following a midnight raid. Mrs. Rogell has filed a cross suit charging her husband with cruelty.

STATE READY

small per cent of merchants throughout the state have as yet failed to obtain their vendor's licenses. He expressed confidence that there would be 100 per cent co-operation.

Today, the 270 inspectors of the tax commission were winding up their check of merchants in the state, advising them in detail as to their operations under the sales tax law so that the tax collection machinery can get under way Monday without a hitch.

On Monday, according to Davis, the inspectors will begin a re-check of the merchants and assist them with a y problems that may come up in connection with the administration of the tax.

Bannister Files Suit; Names Wife as Unfit

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 23 Ann Harding, blonde film star, today was said to be "too ill to comment" on the action of her former husband Harry Bannister in branding her as "not a fit and proper person" to care for their six-year-old daughter, Jane.

Miss Harding recently won complete custody of the child in a Reno court, where she and Bannister were divorced some years ago.

In filing his action to compel the star to relinquish the custody of their daughter, Bannister, through his attorney, Bern C. Hanna, attacked the validity of the Reno decree, charging his former wife is and has been a resident of Los Angeles.

ELKS LAUNCH DRIVE HITTING 'REDS' IN U. S.

Petition Placed In Lodge Home, Available to All, Memorializing Congress

Calling for "the flaming spirit of a crusade" Michael F. Shannon, Grand Exalted Ruler of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks of the United States of America, has launched a memorial to congress for legislation deemed necessary to eradicate Communist and other subversive influence in the country.

This determination came with full knowledge that subversive interests are being allowed to grow and spread unchecked by official action of our federal government and that corrective bills of two sessions of congress have been permitted to die in committee. A challenge to all units of the Order came in the form of a resolution from the Elks of Concord, Massachusetts, whose home stands almost on the spot where "the embattled farmers stood" on that memorable day in April, 1775.

COVER EIGHT POINTS
The petitions now in the hands of the 1400 Elk Lodges throughout the country cover eight points of legislation:

1. Investigation of all subversive activities by the department of justice with ample funds provided to furnish personnel and cover expenses, with discretionary authority to publish facts concerning individuals or organizations seeking to overthrow the government by force or violence.

2. Outlawing organizations having for their purpose the overthrow by force or violence of the American constitutional government.

3. Making it a felony to advocate, promote or encourage such overthrow.

4. Denying use of the mails to publications advocating such overthrow or affiliated with outlawed organizations.

5. Prohibit interstate transportation of such publications.

6. Making certain deportation of aliens seeking the overthrow of the United States Government.

7. Denying entry into the United States of aliens known to be out of harmony with American form of government.

8. Providing for revocation of naturalization of naturalized citizens advocating overthrow or change of government through force or violence.

With cooperation of The American Legion, the Junior Chamber of Commerce, various service clubs and patriotic organizations, the citizens of each community will be afforded the opportunity of signing, thus indicating to their Congressman and Senators the conclusion that the time is at hand to enact such legislative measure as will permanently remove the menace of those who seek the overthrow of the Government by force or violence.

The petitions from all communities will be assembled at The Elks National Memorial Building in Chicago on February 22nd, Washington's Birthday, and there grouped by congressional districts and taken to Washington for formal presentation to the United States Senate and to the House of Representatives.

Leland E. Pontius, Exalted Ruler of Circleville Elks Lodge No. 77 has received an allotment of petitions with instructions for local handling; a copy may be found at any time at the Elks home. For those citizens who will want to sign, the Elks home, 1000 N. Main St., is the place to go to it that these petitions are signed freely so that they may go on to Washington as much as 100 per cent representative of the community as possible.

Thus there will be a demonstration of the aroused spirit of Americanism that exists in this country today.

The members of the Kiwanis club as individuals signed the petition 100 per cent at their meeting Monday evening.

LIQUOR LICENSES FACE DAVEY QUIZ
COLUMBUS, Jan. 23—A sweeping investigation of all liquor licenses issued by Governor Martin Davey when the present term expires in February, New laws may be granted on a ten-point basis only, Davey has announced. He also announced a plan to reorganize the enforcement division.

MEETING CANCELLED
Due to the weather conditions, a meeting at the Presbyterian church tonight will be omitted.

Bruno's Nemesis

Walter Lyle

If Walter Lyle hadn't checked up on a $10 gold certificate, noting the license number on the automobile of the man who presented it at his gasoline station in the Bronx, there might never have been a trial at Flemington, and Bruno Hauptmann, in whose garage part of the Lindbergh ransom money later was found, might never have been arrested. Lyle is shown testifying in the trial of Hauptmann for the Lindbergh baby's murder.

headed by Hauptmann and his wife, Anna. Reilly would not disclose who the other witnesses will be, though one of them is expected to be Mrs. Greja Henckel, the young blonde matron who was a friend of both Hauptmann and the late Isidor Fisch, who Hauptmann claims gave him the $14,600 in ransom money police found hidden on his premises.

ALIBI IS DEFENSE
Hauptmann's principal defense will be his alibi for the night of the crime, Reilly said. The attorney would not disclose what this alibi would be, other than that the defense will show Hauptmann was at Frederickson's bakery in the Bronx when Baby Lindbergh was being kidnapped from the nursery in his rambling home near Hope-well the night of March 1, 1932.

"We will have plenty of witnesses to bear out Hauptmann's story of where he was the night of the abduction," Reilly said. "I cannot make public who they are at this time because of the death threats which are being made against defense witnesses."

Reilly promised to have a statement which will "knock your eyes out" on the day the defense winds up its case.
